

SAFE Project's No Shame Campaign

NEWS BRIEF

SAFE Project's Launches No Shame Campaign

SAFE Project recently launched its No Shame, grassroots campaign. Stigma often acts as a barrier to individuals getting help for mental health and substance use disorders. SAFE Project believes there's No Shame in getting help or talking about mental health and addiction. This campaign aims to create a nationwide movement to combat negative public perceptions caused by stigma and support those seeking treatment. To learn more about the No Shame Campaign, visit the No Shame website (safeproject.us/noshame) and like us on Facebook, Twitter, and Instagram. Join the conversation by using #NoShame.

There's No Shame in getting help. Addiction is a disease. Take the No Shame Pledge.
